MARKET ANNOUNCEMENT – Capital Labs to list its first live investment offer to Australian retail investors

iQX Limited (NSX:iQX), part of The iQ Group Global, today announced that Capital Labs, the equity crowd sourcing business unit of its subsidiary iQX Investment Services Pty Ltd (AFSL 451144), and one of the first ASIC authorized equity crowdfunding platforms in Australia, is launching its first investment offer.

Capital Labs is excited to announce its first live retail investment offer is for Nexdius Limited, an Australian company revolutionizing sun protection through its innovative Solar D products, which are already on the market.

“We are excited to be the first live offer on the Capital Labs platform. The new equity crowdfunding legislation is a great pathway to enable Australian investors to partner with us as we roll out the Solar D products on a global scale.” Mathew Collett, CEO of Nexdius Limited said.

CEO and founder of The iQ Group Global, Dr George Syrmalis added, “As a Group, we are focused on bridging science with investors. The retail investors in Australia can now easily invest in Australian life science companies that are destined to improve health outcomes and prevent disease.

Through the funds raised from the retail community, these companies will be enabled to progress their research or commercialization programs to make their inventions tangible products that will benefit consumers and patients” Dr Syrmalis said.

Now fully operational, Capital Labs will start to generate revenue streams consolidated with iQX from innovative Australian life companies, like Nexdius Limited, making investment offers through the Capital Labs’ platform. This first partnership has been confirmed and will be in market, open for investment from 12 March 2018.

Capital Labs is cultivating a pipeline of innovative companies that it will bring to the retail investor market in the immediate future.

Nexdius Limited, will be making its debut on Capital Labs and be open for investment from 12 March 2018.
